BLACK TIGER SHRIMP

Latin name: Penaeus monodon

- Natural distribution ranges from South East Asia to the eastern coast of Africa.
- Available all year round; Vietnam's large harvest is in April.
- As the shrimp-farming industry has grown robustly, human has actively intervened in shrimp breeding, instead of relying heavily on natural breeding.
- Advanced intensive shrimp farming techniques have helped increase shrimp density per hectare.

By using the fish seed from Thailand, which shorten the farming period, higher yield, offer a final product with exquisite taste and texture.

BAP FARM

Thriving Farms, Growing Harvests

Farming Overview:

- Total Area: 1,000 hectares (530 hectares of water surface).
- Ponds: 600, each covering 0.5–1 hectare.

Expansion Plan:

- Area: Doubling to 2,000 hectares (1,300 hectares of water surface).
- Production: Doubling to 100,000–120,000 tons per year.

BAP FEED MILL

Emphasis is placed on nutritional content:

- The feed for Tilapia is produced in-house by the factory.
- The feed contains several components, including Moisture, Crude Protein, Metabolizable Energy (ME), Crude Fiber, Ethoxyquin, Lysine, Methionine, Cystine, and Fat...
- The protein content in feed is a factor of significant concern.
